TRUCK TURNS OVER; 1 DEAD MINES IDLE; 20,000 PROTEST OUSTING OF VETERAN EMPLOYEES

Thirteen Pennsylvania
Mines Closed As Workers Strike

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., March 26.—Thirteen of the fourteen mines of the Glen Alden Coal Co., in Luzerne County were idle today and 20,000 men were out on strike as leaders of local unions continued their movement of protest against ousting of old employees and replacement of them by new men.

Four more collieries joined the strikers today in their defiance of district and International Mine Union officials. The Truesdale local, though not affiliated with the general grievance committee which issued the strike call, voted to join the walkout, and strike votes were successful at the South Wilkes-Barre and Woodward Collieries of the company.

The Sugar Notch Mine also went into idleness today when pickets succeeded in inducing the miners there to join the walkout, despite the fact that the local last night voted to take no action in the controversy.

Survey of the district today showed the entire list of operations of the Glen Alden in this region virtually paralyzed. Of twenty-two local unions, twenty have joined in sending delegates to the grievance committee meeting to join in the walkout.

State and local police patrolled the entire district today. A general strike demonstration was staged at Sugar Notch as miners there walked out of the Colliery.

Turning the strike illegal and branding it an "outlaw" demonstration, Philip Murray, international vice-president of the United Mine Workers union, Thomas Kennedy, international secretary-treasurer, and John Boylan, district No. 1 president, appeared at the grievance committee meeting and requested the strikers to return to work while arbitration efforts went forward.

They were shouted down. Communist sympathizers in the gallery of the meeting hall booed the officials and flooded the auditorium with handbills, urging the miners to ignore the union officials. "Don't let those traitors speak for you," came shouts from the gallery as Kennedy and Murray rose to address the meeting.

IDENTIFY MAN WHO KILLED POLICEMAN

CINCINNATI, O., March 26.—With Zera Brooks, 22-year-old Negro, already under arrest, authorities here today pressed a statewide search for his alleged accomplice in an attempted holdup at a drugstore Tuesday night when Patrolman William Sorrell, 28, was shot and killed.

Police expressed confidence today that Brooks was one of the two thugs who participated in the holdup which was frustrated when Sorrell appeared on the scene. Charles Reynolds, who was a customer in the store at the time, has identified Brooks, police said. Sorrell was slain when he surprised the two Negro gunmen in the act of staging the holdup. The thugs fled on foot. Brooks was captured late yesterday.

DISCREPANCIES IN MURDER TESTIMONY REVEALED ON STAND

Witnesses For State Contradict Each Other
At Trial

CLEVELAND, March 26.—Discrepancies in the testimony of state's witnesses in the trial of "Pittsburgh Hymie" Martin, charged with the first degree murder of former Councilman William E. Potter, were revealed today in the questioning of Detective Sergeant Anthony Koryta on the witness stand.

Refuting a statement made by Police Lieutenant Stephen McNally on the stand yesterday, that Potter's body was not moved in the Parkwood Drive murder apartment until detectives arrived with cameras, Koryta stated that a policeman had taken the liberty to change the position of the body before the pictures were taken.

This detail in the discovery of the slain councilman's body was brought out under direct examination by Prosecutor Ray T. Miller. Cross-examined by defense Attorney William Minshall, Koryta explained further details of the murder scene which were contrary to the statements made by McNally.

Four women witnesses were to follow Koryta to the witness stand in the state's attempt to send Martin to the electric chair as punishment for his alleged part in the sensational murder.

One of the woman witnesses called was Mrs. Myrtle McMurphy of Beaver Falls, Pa., sister-in-law of Fred C. Laub, custodian of the apartment building. Mrs. McMurphy was to identify Martin as the "M. J. Markus," the man who rented the murder apartment. The woman is said to have been visiting the Laubs when the apartment was rented.

Other witnesses were Mrs. Betty Gray, who is regarded as the "ace" for the state; Queen Esther Morgan, who also has identified Martin as "Markus," and Mrs. Ruth Lieberman, who previously told police that her husband, Morris Lieberman, sold Martin the Potter death gun.

COMMITTEE BLOCKS MEMORIAL TRIAL

COLUMBUS, O., March 26.—Thumbs were turned down today on the Nickels bill, providing for the creation of a state historical commission to replace the Ohio Revolutionary Memorial commission, with authority to mark historical places in all parts of the state.

The bill, which passed the senate, was killed by order of the house committee on state buildings, parks and public works after representatives of the Ohio Archaeological and Historical Society registered opposition.

Powers sought to be delegated to the proposed commission properly belong to the society, it was contended.

PLAN PILGRIMAGE TO WILLIS' GRAVE

The skeleton faced east towards the rising sun. Five copper bracelets encircled the right wrist. Near the chief's left foot were five arrows. Near the skull were two metal bracelets.

DAYTON MAN KILLED; COMPANION IS HELD

Robert Nance Victim When Truck Upsets Near Alpha; John Rotert Driver, Being Investigated By Sheriff's Office

Robert Nance, 34, 80 Van Buren St., Dayton, was killed instantly and his brother-in-law, John Rotert, 39, same address, suffered minor injuries when the truck in which they were riding left the Alpha-Bellbrook Road at a curve south of Alpha and overturned at 11:30 o'clock Thursday morning.

Rotert, who was driving and suffered only a cut on one leg and minor bruises, was detained for questioning after the accident by Sheriff John Baughn, who said he would investigate the possibility the driver was intoxicated. Afterward it was turned over to Frank Reisinger, Dayton undertaker.

Nance is survived by his widow and a sister, living at 80 Van Buren St., in Dayton.

SENATE COMMITTEE WILL LET ASSEMBLY DECIDE DISTRICTS

Despite Objections Will Offer Norton Bill
"As Is"

COLUMBUS, O., March 26.—Despite widespread opposition, the congressional gerrymander proposed by the state senate subcommittee on redistricting will be presented to the general assembly "as is" with an invitation to both houses to alter the plan as they wish, it was indicated here today.

The center of protests against the scheme appeared to be the growth of population of Mahoning, Summit and Stark counties, which admittedly baffled the subcommittee at its first public hearing on the Morton redistricting plan last night.

Two protests about the rearrangement of his district were raised by Senator V. D. Emmons (R) of Akron, who appeared before the committee. Although approximately nine-tenths of Summit County is placed in one district, Senator Emmons protested having the remaining fraction joined to Stark and Carroll counties in another district.

"We want to save Medina County, too, if possible," he said, admitting that Republican votes in Medina County are treasured by Summit County Republicans.

Through Representative James A. Jones (R) of Ravenna, Portage County lodged a protest at being joined with Youngstown and Mahoning County, by whom, he said, "We would be completely swallowed."

When numerous other objections were presented, Senator Laurence H. Norton (R) of Cleveland, author of the plan, suggested that political leaders in the locality that includes Summit, Portage, Stark, Medina, Tuscarawas, Ashland and Richland attempt to call a meeting to smooth out their differences.

Declaring that Tuscarawas is "not an Ohio River County," Senator Walter G. Nickels (R) of New Philadelphia, asked that Tuscarawas be divorced from Guernsey, Muskingum, Noble, Monroe, Washington and Morgan with whom it was placed in the temporary set-up.

Portage, he said, might be joined to Stark and Carroll could be

MOTOR BUS EXCISE TAX RECOMMENDED

COLUMBUS, O., March 26.—An excise tax on motor bus transportation companies was expected to be recommended to the legislature's special taxation committee today as the outgrowth of railroad protests voiced yesterday in the state senate.

Complaints against the allegedly small tax paid by bus companies were made in a hearing of a bill by Senator Paul P. Yoder (D) of Dayton, to reduce the railroad excess tax from 4 per cent to 1.35 per cent. The tax suggested would also be levied against bus companies, not now paying such an excise.

AUSTRO-GERMAN PACT PRECIPITATES POLITICAL CRISIS IN CENTRAL EUROPE

POLITICAL FUSION SEEMS INEVITABLE SPOKESMAN ADMITS

Deeper Meaning Than
Economic Agreement
Now Apparent

By I. N. S.
Developments today in the critical political situation arising out of the Austro-German customs agreement were as follows:

1—German foreign office spokesman admits that "Anschluss," for political fusion of Germany and Austria is regarded by Germany as inevitable.

2—British officials outspoken in belief agreement is merely a "cover" for subsequent political ties between the two German speaking nations.

3—Austrian minister of justice leaves for Berlin shortly to negotiate adaptation of German penal, civil, railway and educational systems to Austrian institutions.

4—French official predicts agreement change "entire future" of Europe and predicts Austria will soon learn to regret it.

5—Czechoslovakian foreign minister envisions harmful results to other European nations and declares Czechoslovakia ready "for all eventualities."

VIENNA, March 26.—Two significant developments here indicated today that the proposed Austro-German customs union agreement may have a deeper meaning than merely an economical agreement.

It was announced that Dr. Hans Schurr, Austrian minister of justice, would leave for Berlin immediately to negotiate the adaptation of the German and Austrian civil and penal codes.

In addition, he will seek an adaptation of the school systems of the two countries.

FIREARMS BILL IS PASSED BY SENATE Would Fix Licenses For Owning Guns

COLUMBUS, O., March 26.—As part of an anti-crime movement, the state senate today requested endorsement by the house of representatives of a bill passed in the upper branch yesterday providing life imprisonment as a punishment for the use of firearms in any theft or robbery.

Provisions for stiffer sentences for thieves using guns and revolvers are contained in the bill by Senator William I. Spangler (D) of Tilton, which the senate adopted by a 26-0 vote.

Senator Spangler explained to members of his branch of the legislature that life terms as a penalty for robbing with the help of firearms are now permitted only in the case of bank thefts.

If enacted into law, the Spangler bill also would require licenses, to be issued by county authorities, for the legal ownership of firearms. Valid reason for wishing to own a gun of any kind would have to be shown. The license charge would be $1 and the license term would extend for six years.

AUTO RACING TRACK IN OHIO PLANNED

REPORT SECRETARY WILBUR MAY RETIRE

WASHINGTON, March 26.—There are persistent reports that the end of the fiscal year, June 30, may see some shifts in President Hoover's cabinet.

One of the changes most frequently and persistently rumored involves the secretaryship of the interior now held by Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, who was "drafted" by Mr. Hoover at the outset of his administration.

According to the report, which denial has thus far failed to still, Dr. Wilbur plans to retire from his cabinet post and return to the university before the next term begins. His successor, according to reports in administration circles, is to be William V. Hodges, of Denver, former treasurer of the Republican national committee, and more recently an unsuccessful candidate for the senate from Colorado. Wilbur denies the report.

SOPHIE TUCKER GETS SMUGGLING FINE

YOUTH SURRENDERS ON MURDER CHARGE

PROVIDENCE, R. I., March 26.—Elliott Hathaway, 23-year-old Fall River "play boy," wanted for questioning in connection with the strangling of Miss Verna Russell, 20-year-old student nurse, whose body was found on a lonely road in Tiverton, surrendered today to Attorney General Benjamin M. McLean.

Young Hathaway had been the object of a far flung man-hunt throughout the east and Canada for forty-eight hours.

Hathaway came forward to "face the music" following a telephone conversation with his brother, Dr. Louis Hathaway, of Springfield, Mass., after which Dr. Hathaway left the home of his parents in Fall River, by automobile and hurried to meet his brother.

Meanwhile, word was sent by the young man's father, State Representative Louis R. Hathaway to District Attorney William C. Crossley at Fall River that his boy was ready to surrender to Rhode Island authorities.

URGE APPROVAL FOR TWO-YEAR BUDGET BEFORE COMMITTEE

A plea that a legislative appropriation amounting to $1,979,429.25 be recommended for the Ohio Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home here, this sum representing the proposed institutional budget for the two-year period of 1931 and 1932, was made by a delegation of Xenians and others at a hearing on the budget before the Ohio House finance committee in Columbus Wednesday morning.

The budget request for the next two years include $407,700 for personal service, $738,729.25 for maintenance and $833,000 for additions and betterments.

The Xenia group which appeared before the finance committee to appeal for allowance of the budget requests in full included all members of the Home board of trustees except Milton D. Campbell, Cincinnati; Supt. Harold L. Hays, Dr. A. C. Messenger, resident physician; C. K. Probasco, superintendent of Home schools; J. E. Balmer, supervisor of trades; J. ## ILLINOIS REPEALS PROHIBITION LAW; AWAITS SIGNATURE

Is Sixth State To Abandon
Dry Law Enforcement

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 26.—Repeal of the Illinois prohibition laws, sanctioned last night in the state senate by a 26 to 24 vote after a six year battle, today awaited only the signature of Governor Louis Emmerson before prohibition enforcement in this state will be left solely to the federal government.

Within ten days the bill will go to the governor for signature or veto. Those close to the chief executive predict that he will either sign the bill or allow it to become a law without his signature. The usual hearings probably will be held in the executive's office during this period.

The bill, known as the O'Grady-McDermott repealer, was passed by the lower house earlier in the legislative session by a 91 to 56 vote.

When and if the O'Grady-McDermott bill becomes a law Illinois will be the sixth state in the United States to repeal its state prohibition enforcement acts. Other states are Wisconsin, Montana, Nevada, New York and Massachusetts. Maryland never has had one.

Nine Republicans and seventeen Democrats voted for the repealer. Of this eighteen were from Cook County (Chicago area) and eight were from downstate.

It was a dramatic liberal victory in which the repeal bill passed the senate after being stopped by that body in three previous sessions after the house had passed it. Lobbying of the Anti-Saloon League apparently proved to little avail. Leaders of the League watched the proceedings from the gallery.

Nearly seven hours of continued oratory preceded the bill's passage. Cheers and pounding upon desks went up from the liberal Democratic side as the result was made known. Edward C. Westhafer, 44, of Peoria, collapsed in the gallery after a heart attack induced by the excitement.

CONSTRUCTION PROGRAM SHOWS RETURN OF BETTER BUSINESS

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service Staff
Correspondent
(Copyright, 1931, by International News Service.)

NEW YORK, March 26. — A mighty construction program is swinging into action through the United States, presaging a sharp revival of business in all lines. Charles F. Abbott, executive director of the American Institute of Steel Construction, declared in an exclusive interview today.

"This is going to be a great building year," Mr. Abbott asserted. He "conservatively" estimated that public and private construction during 1931 would exceed the amazing total of $7,000,000,000.

Illustrating the situation, he pointed out such examples as: A $15,000,000 steel contract—the largest single order for structural steel in history—has just been let in New York for the $100,000,000 Rockefeller-Radio city. The order calls for the erection of 125,000 tons of steel. This job will provide work for from 8,000 to 10,000 men.

The Cincinnati Union station order, given recently, for 24,000 tons. The Nevada Hoover Dam contract a $48,000,000 project, award, and San Francisco's Golden Gate bridge project.

"The United States is pulling out of its business depression," said Mr. Abbott. "The public building section of the Hoover committee got started in its work about January 1. On March 15, in spite of the business depression and winter weather, the construction work undertaken—that is the public building—amounted to $700,000,000."

It was Mr. Abbott's conservative estimate that public and private construction during 1931 will exceed $7,000,000,000. If consideration is given to the reduced prices of materials and the cost of construction this total, he declared, exceeds the best building years of 1927, 1928 and 1929.

"With such a revival of building activity, it is apparent that, a strong influence will be exerted in every other line of business," said Abbott. "The result will be an early resumption in all lines. Along about July, August and September the revival should be quite general."

"The steel business right now is good. The aviation industry has been going ahead and has a tremendous future. Steel has already advanced $1 a ton in the first quarter (three months) and another $1 a ton for the second quarter. Building and engineering projects of the future are going to assume a greater magnitude than ever."

Mr. Abbott pointed out that looking back into history it will be found that business depressions have always been accompanied by social disorders—strikes and riots and that it was necessary to resort to the militia to maintain tranquility. Yet the 1930 depression, greatest of all, was marked by no social upheaval and it was unnecessary to call out the troops. This Abbott regarded as a fine demonstration of the stability of the American people and of their determination to conquer a business adversity.

Lose Fat Safely & Quickly

Kruschen Salts—(a perfect combination of the six mineral salts your body should have to function properly) purify your blood of harmful acids, and aid the kidneys and bowels to throw off waste material—the continual formation of which is probably the cause of your fat.

In this modern age of living, it's impossible to get these salts from the fancy foods you eat—but don't worry just as long as you have Kruschen Salts.

Take a half teaspoon every morning before breakfast in a glass of hot water—little by little that ugly fat disappears, you'll feel better than ever before—years younger, more energy. You'll soon possess that enviable beauty, clear skin, sparkling eyes, superb figure which only perfect health can impart.

An 8-oz bottle (lasts 4 weeks) at any progressive drugstore in America. Money back if Kruschen doesn't convince you that it is the safest, quickest, easiest way to lose fat.

A Hartford woman writes: "I'll tell the world Kruschen Salts is wonderful stuff to reduce." An Ohio woman lost 10 pounds with one bottle.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel drowsy and out. Your waste system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain no harmful, harsh, or irritating ingredients, and when it comes to making the bile flow freely, But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Remove a substitute.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Reprove not a scorner, lest he hate thee; rebuke a wise man, and he will love thee. Give instruction to a wise man, and he will be yet wiser; teach a just man, and he will increase in learning.—Proverbs, ix, 8, 9.

PAINT IN THE BACK YARD

If people could only see their own property as other people see it, there would be some tremendous clean-up jobs done here and elsewhere. People become used to disorderly home grounds, and fail to realize how disreputable and discouraging they look, and what a blot of depression they cast over a neighborhood.

One thing that makes many homes look ugly, is the habit of letting small outlying structures go unpainted. It often happens that people will paint their dwellings, but if they have a garage or a woodshed or a chicken coop in the rear, they let that go unpainted.

Fences also need to be painted. If not painted they soon decay, and either they will flop around in a decadent condition, or they will have to be renewed. Painting a fence or a woodshed takes but little paint and little time, and it adds so much to the neatness of the place, that it amply pays.

A property owner feels happier in his possession, his standing in the neighborhood is better, his real estate is worth more money, if he keeps every bit of woodwork around his place in neat and attractive condition. These structures will last much longer to make it pay.

A house with every bit of the back yard woodwork painted looks like a place where the owner is adequate to all situations, and it is a pleasure to have such a one for a neighbor. People would pay more money to rent next to such a man. That reputation is worth something as a practical asset.

A house with unpainted structures in the rear seems a kind of announcement to the world that the people who live there are not keeping up with the game, and are letting things slip. No one can afford to give that impression to his neighbors and the world.

GOVERNMENT RED TAPE

The slow process of getting action through the government has been illustrated the past winter, in efforts made to start public construction jobs to relieve the unemployed. People had a hopeful idea that if there were a lot of men out of work, they could suddenly be given employment by starting these construction jobs. But it is not so simple as that.

If the government is going to construct a post-office, many preliminaries have to be gone through with. A site must be selected, legal papers drafted and signed, plans must be drawn, bids advertised for. It is a long process, more extended than citizens realize.

When such proceedings drag along month after month, it is often called "red tape." And yet it seems to be necessary. There are a host of people who are all the time trying to put something over on the government. These various preliminaries are largely required as a protection against those persons who are trying to take unfair advantage.

Public officials wish to protect themselves against charges of fraud and favoritism. They fear that if they make hasty decisions, so as to get work along, the complaint will be made that they acted improperly. So gradually systems have grown up the purpose of which is to make fraud and favoritism impossible. These systems are a defense against undue influence, but they often make government work very slow.

Is there any way to speed up this so-called red tape? It is not easy, so long as so many people are trying in some way to get something out of the government that they should not have. And yet, in times of emergency, the time required for preliminaries might seemingly be speeded up. Public officials should be given some leeway, and power to cut out unnecessary motions in a time when many need employment.

STARTING THE GOOD FIGHT

Cartoonist Ireland, whose fame has extended far and wide from Ohio, honored the farmers the other day. A sturdy team of horses drawing a plow held by a stern-faced man of the soil constitute the picture Mr. Ireland drew for the occasion. A bunch of roses labeled "Flowers for the living" lies in one corner of the picture, and the following caption appears over all:

"Getting ready to fight the battle all over again—our roses today are for this soldier—there is no finer courage displayed in American life—Last week the plowing was about finished all over southern Ohio—the ground broke up well, it looks fine, and appears eager for another try—we fervently hope he wins!"

Think about it a minute, business and professional men, artisans and laborers. Last summer's drought inconvenienced you because there wasn't enough water to sprinkle your lawn and wash your car. To the farmer, it meant a year's work—food, clothing and happiness. He was pitting his strength in a losing battle against the most relentless of all foes—nature.

Now, with winter drawing to a close and government experts not mincing words as they warn that the winter has been too dry, the farmer must go out again to work, and to hope that his effort will not be wasted. The ground is fine for plowing; usually in February and March it is wet and soggy, but not this year. Unless a protracted period of rain falls occurs later, seed can be "got in" early, and the growing season moved forward a few weeks, perhaps.

And then what? More drought, or will things be better this summer? Trusting that providence will care for him, the farmer grips the plow handles tighter and quickens his step.

It's a real pleasure to second cartoonist Ireland's tribute to the farmer's pluck and to add to the hope that he may win in 1931.—Lorain Times Herald.

STEEL OFFERS AN INDEX

The steel industry's announcement of a price increase of five cents a hundred pounds for finished steel, effective for deliveries in the first quarter of 1931, has occasioned much encouragement in the industrial world.

An increase in prices may very well stimulate orders. When prices are falling, manufacturers keep their purchases as low as possible, in the hope that future prices may even fall below the present favorable figures. But when prices begin to rise—when it is apparent that a climb in the general price level, however gradual, has begun—purchasers are tempted to buy as much as possible, fearing that future prices may go much higher.

It is entirely reasonable to suppose that the example of the steel industry will be pretty generally followed. Iron and steel have long been regarded as "the hub of the American business world" or "the barometer of industry." J. Pierpont Morgan, who organized the United States Steel Corporation in 1901, said at the second "Gary dinner" that he had always been taught in a business way to regard the iron and steel industry as a accurate barometer to general business conditions.—Zanesville Times Recorder.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK. — A sure sign that The Depression has hit the skys is the type of men you see shivering these star-lit evenings on the one or two remaining bread lines.

The unemployment problem isn't solved, by any means; but it's way past the acute stage.

If you don't believe that, walk around town, as I did the other day, and take a look at the men who are selling apples. Nine out of ten are recent graduates of the pushcart, taking advantage of an emergency measure no longer essential.

QUERY

Ella Wendel, who Ruled Off Her Accounts one day last week, was a seventy-eight-year-old spinster who lived and died almost as a hermit in a great, dark Fifth Avenue mansion of horse-hair furniture and whatnots—a house that sheltered three generations of the family.

The establishment, surrounded on all sides by giant structures of architectural grandeur, stands at Thirty-ninth Street and The Avenue. Receding more and more into the past with the death of each of the six Wendel sisters, it dropped back still further into its strange silence immediately following the funeral services for Miss Ella.

A Bowery bum kicked off in a flop joint on the fringe of China Town the night Ella Wendel slid across to the Evergreen Shore.

The Bowery bum didn't leave a sou markee.

Which of these two was ahead of the game when The Call came?

CATCH YOUR HARE

The old stage hand was talking: "There are several theatrical managers on Broadway who, whenever they have a flop on their hands, began to look for the cause and finally decide that it is the high cost resulting from the growing power of the unions representing stage crews.

"They immediately declare that they are out of the game for good or at least until conditions change; but you'll always notice they are right back at the old stand again just as soon as they get a new angel, or kid themselves into thinking that their new show will be a knockout.

"Give the public a real show, with a competent cast, and regardless of the speculator and his allies, the theatre manager and his box office man, the public will support the show.

"But first get someone to write a good show."

What an acquisition one of those bracelets would be on the uplifted arm of the lady known as Justice, atop a certain ornate public building in Tammany Town!

SKOAL!

BORAH HAS FIERCE BARK BUT WILL HE "BITE" REPUBLICANS IN 1932?

CHARLES F. STEWART

WASHINGTON, March 24.—Senator William E. Borah of Idaho undoubtedly has the fiercest bark, in combination with no bite whatever, of any man in public life today.

Moreover, the people he barks at know it.

To sit in the gallery and listen to him declaim on the senate floor, one would imagine that the folk he attacks would unite to beat him at the next election or perish in the attempt.

But Borah never has any opposition to speak of.

Senator Norris had to fight for his political life in Nebraska last November. Senator Schallmeier, through by the narrowest of margins in Minnesota, and still has a contest on his hands. Senator McMaster actually was defeated in South Dakota. In 1926 conservative Republicanism succeeded in ousting Senator Brookhart after he had been seated, and put a Bourbon Democrat, Daniel F. Steek, in his place, from the rockbound G. O. P. state of Iowa.

Anti-radical forces already are being mobilized throughout the entire country, to be thrown into unreliable areas next year, in an effort to save or rescue them from progressive representation in Washington.

Borah, however, always has a walkover out in Idaho.

What the "interests" (as the progressives call them) evidently dislike in statesmen such as Senators Norris, Schall, Brookhart, Nye, Howell, La Follette, Blaine, Cutting, Wheeler, Frazier, Shipstead and other irreconcilables is that these solons not only abuse them orationally but really try to harpoon them.

Senator Borah has a happy faculty, talk as you may, of "voting right" when the roll is called.

For example:

There would be an extra session of congress this spring if the senators who were demanding adequate relief of industrial unemployment and agricultural distress had been able to keep their alignment together. Senator Borah made a speech urging them to do so. It was magnificent. Progressives crowded around and shook his hand. Everyone said, "This means an extra session." But when the time came to vote Borah had no objection to a compromise.

No other half dozen of legislators put together have found so much fault with so many of President Hoover's policies as Senator Borah.

Yet no other half dozen of spellbinders put together did so much to help Mr. Hoover in his campaign for the White House in 1928, though he was quite well enough acquainted with the candidate to know very accurately in advance what his policies would be.

Some people argue that Borah definitely does not want a president with whom he would have to agree—that harmony between himself and the administration would be unendurable to him.

I am not so sure of this. The senator seems to me to agree with the administration better than he appears to. The administration wanted a compromise on unemployment and agricultural relief. The senator made a tremendous demonstration in full-fledged relief's favor, but he did not prevent a compromise, as he could, unquestionably, by standing pat for it.

It generally is recognized that Senator Borah was the most eloquent of all the speakers at the progressives' conference in Washington just before the middle of March.

The progressives threaten to bolt the G. O. P. ticket in 1932 if the Democrats put up a presidential candidate satisfactory to them against President Hoover, whom they disapprove of thoroughly, but who, they admit is sure to be named again as the Republicans' standard bearer.

And there are forecasters who, notwithstanding all that has happened heretofore, are predicting that at last Senator Borah will bolt with them.

While in principle I deprecate gambling, I think anyone who can get a few bets on, with upholders of this proposition, even offering odds up to ten to one or thereabouts, has an opportunity to make a little easy money.

Incidentally, Senator Borah had a two-hour luncheon engagement with the president the day before Hoover departed for his Caribbean trip.

Mexican Spaghetti Potato Chips
Mixed Vegetable Salad
Cocoanut Burrs
Coffee or Tea

This menu is more or less of a delicatessen dinner. The spaghetti is canned, you see, and the potato chips are purchased at the grocery or delicatessen. The cocoanut burrs may be made the day or night before. So if you are a business woman housekeeper this is a helpful menu for you to try out.

Today's Recipe

Mexican Spaghetti.—One-half cup chopped cooked ham, one medium sliced green pepper, chopped; one small onion, chopped; one can cooked spaghetti. Brown the ham, green pepper and onion in a skillet with a small amount of butter or ham fat. Add spaghetti and allow to cook slowly until the spaghetti is thoroughly heated.

Cocoanut Burrs.—Cream together one-third cup shortening and three-fourths cup sugar, and one well-beaten egg, then one-third cup canned raspberries mashed, but not sieved. Add one and one-half cups sifted pastry flour, one and one-half teaspoons baking powder one-fourth teaspoon soda and one-fourth teaspoon salt. Add one cup bran and one cup of most cocoanut and chill. Drop by small spoonfuls on a greased pan about two inches apart. Bake in moderate, 350 degrees, oven for about 10 minutes. Makes three and one-half dozen.

Laws of Health for Children
The laws of good health maintain that the maximum nourishment taken by infants and very small children shall be in liquid form, of course, milk. Milk contains enough of all the necessary food elements for adequate nutrition except the minerals, copper and iron, and the vitamins B, C and D. These must be supplied by additions of orange juice, vegetable juices, egg yolk and cod-liver oil.

The child should be taught at an early age to take one quart of milk daily. This need not be taken only as a beverage, but as creamed soups on cereals or in custards. This amount of milk is required to prevent rickets. Milk is rich in calcium and, therefore, used for the prevention of this disease.

Orange juice is the mother of vitamin C. A child will usually take all that is offered to him, especially if it is sweetened with honey. Honey has been used very successfully in babies' formulae in place of corn syrup or glucose.

It's funny, isn't it? We ought to be friends because we share some great and noble aspiration, because we love the same thing, because we are soldiers in a common cause, and we say "no" when they really mean "yes"? Or clergy-men who seem ashamed of their profession? Or salesmen who tell you this is what everybody's wearing? Or intellectuals who sneer at what other people like? Or acquaintances who tell you

Diabetics Much Aided By Insulin

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

The actual advantage of having diabetes and the health-giving qualities of the diabetic diet for the middle-aged were pointed out yesterday. But the diabetic has been greatly favored by medical discovery in the use of insulin. The middle-aged or elderly diabetic can get on very well with little insulin or without it entirely. The young child with diabetes can hardly get along at all without insulin.

We are just beginning to learn how marvelous the benefits from the use of insulin have been. It took time to bring this out. For instance, here is a report of 100 patients carefully studied. They had been on insulin five to eight years.

First, food tolerance. That is a great item. When a severe diabetic starts out on treatment the amount of sugar that can be consumed without insulin is very low. Even on dietary treatment alone, which keeps the body sugar free, this tolerance usually rises. But with the prolonged use of insulin it has been found to go up tremendously. Twenty-eight cases on diet alone before the days of insulin increased their food tolerance 200 to 1,000 calories. After five years of insulin 27 of them had increased it far beyond this. Seven patients were barely maintaining the lowest diet possible to maintain weight (not growth) without any exertion. It is hard to imagine what that means; if they ate just a little more than enough to maintain a low weight, if they ate a satisfied appetite, they showed sugar. After insulin they could have more than enough to maintain weight and growth and keep hunger satisfied without danger.

The amount of insulin required is frequently reduced. So that the patient can look forward to taking less insulin after a certain period. This factor is somewhat complicated by the youthful age of patients for whom insulin is most valuable. Under insulin treatment they are likely to grow, and when their bodies get larger they require more food. The ability to utilize sugar does not keep pace with the body's growth. So in some of these rapidly growing patients more insulin instead of less is required. When insulin has been begun in a fully grown person with severe diabetes, the amount can almost invariably be cut down in time.

Increased weight and growth, when under insulin, is remarkable. Before the use of insulin the children studied showed slight or negligible growth. With insulin treatment children grow normally and above standard increases for their ages. Thin people gain weight on insulin, whereas with diabetic treatment alone severe diabetics lose weight.

The economic efficiency of diabetic patients improves on insulin treatment. Before insulin treatment a little less than half the cases were able to do some or all of their work. About a quarter of them could get about, but could do no work. About a third were helpless. With the help of insulin three-quarters of them can do full duty, and one-quarter part duty. None are helpless.

The fear that the repeated hypodermic injections necessary in giving insulin would harm the skin has proved groundless. Eight patients in four years had a total of 23,000 needle punctures with no ill effects to the skin whatever.

Such is the record of insulin in its first nine years of existence.

What To Do 'Tween Love?

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

What's to be done when love and ambition clash? It often happens that a young man or woman has his or her heart set on achieving some big things in study, business or whatnot, and then they meet and fall in love. Should they give up their ambition and marry? Or should they crush down the natural longings of their hearts and go on in their chosen way until they are in what they call a "position to marry?"

Is it fair to the loved one to ask them to wait? Or should they make it clear—in spite of the dictates of their hearts—that they will not consider marriage until their ambition is achieved, regardless of the other person's feelings?

"Dear Virginia Lee: I need advice badly. "Approximately six months ago I met a young man. He is 24. He attends the university twice a week. He says he is working for higher degrees. He is just overflowing with ambition, and I admire him for it. "When we go out we go either to a show or riding. We end by stopping somewhere and talking. Our conversation is light, chatter. He has never told me he loves me, although he kisses me ardently. Sometimes he cannot pull himself away to go home, but he never mentions a future date.

"He called last Saturday night and we went for a ride and then, as usual, we stopped to chat. This time our conversation became more serious. In a casual way I asked him if I would see him again. I imagine my surprise when he replied, "You may never see me again. I asked him if he intended to die. He said that if he wants to go to school he will have to forget girls. Then he added, "I can't allow myself to get serious with any girl."

You see the young man has been trying to show you that he doesn't intend to be serious with you. That is why he only sees you occasionally. He made his big mistake in being affectionate when he had the occasional dates with you. That, of course, made you feel that he does care, loving him as you do. But these occasional dates with him give you no hold on him. You must realize that. And as to a definite understanding, I imagine that is what he did give you in his remark, "I can't allow myself to get serious with any girl." Take that as final and plan your life without him. If later on he decides that you are the girl he wants, he will come to you, but don't plan on it. Sorry I can't be more consoling.

How To Keep Nail Rims White

By GLADYS GLAD

The lady of leisure, who really hasn't much else to occupy her attention, does not find it difficult to keep her nails looking in the pink of perfection. But the Hard Working Girl, and the Harassed Housewife, generally find it difficult, in the discharge of their Honorable Duties, to keep the tips of their nails of the whiteness so essential to perfect grooming.

The nail rims may be given the desired whiteness in several ways. One method is by cleansing with the nails with a bit of cotton that has been wrapped around an orange stick, and moistened with peroxide. Another way is by pouring a few drops of peroxide on a nail brush, and rubbing the fingertips over the bristles. A third means is by using nail white under the tips of the nails.

I have never been very much in favor of last mentioned method. The nail white is likely to give too startling and artificial a white, is drying to the nails, and often piles up under the nails, and becomes a nuisance. When this occurs, it is difficult to remove the hardened nail white without the use of a nail file. And no hard, sharp instrument should ever be used under the nails. It will scratch the nails, making little grooves for dust and dirt to accumulate in, and rendering it even harder to keep the nail tips white.

Of course, one can't very well carry about a bottle of peroxide and a nail brush for use on the nails when they become soiled during the day. And few of us can go to the trouble of touching up the nails with nail white and an orange stick each time that they need such attention. But cosmetics manufacturers have recently put out a new manicuring implement that should prove a regular god-send to The Hard Working Girl and The Harassed Housewife.

This latest addition to the manicure series is the nail white pencil. It looks just like any other pencil, except that it has a white point, which is protected by a gold cap. You simply wash your hands, run the pencil under your nails, and presto! your nails emerge with the loveliest of white rims. With such an accessory available, no woman has any excuse for grimy, discolored nail tips.

EDITOR'S NOTE: While it is impossible for Miss Glad to answer beauty questions by mail, she will be happy to send you her pamphlets on "The New Figure" and "Beauty Culture" if you will write her, care of this paper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 10 cents in coin for each, to cover cost of printing and handling. For the articles on "Care of the Hands and Nails" and "Care of the Feet and Legs," 2 cents in coin for each, and a self-addressed, stamped envelope are required. Personal questions of beauty will be answered through Miss Glad's daily column.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

FRAMED
by Phil

A backward glance at the gone but not forgotten Xenia Central High basketball season wrings from us the conviction—a ringing conviction—that the Buccaneers, handicapped by the lack of a center of sufficient height to enable them to gain control of the ball a reasonable length of time, nevertheless gave a far better account of themselves than had generally been expected.

We have nothing but admiration for a team which played such an ambitious schedule as that undertaken by Xenia and still was able to win eleven out of eighteen engagements, including another Miami Valley League title without the loss of a game.

Looking ahead to next season it must be admitted that Xenia may suffer from a dearth of seasoned material.

Birch Bell, Harold Glass and Lester Price, each of whom was selected as a member of the M. V. L. all-star team for 1931, will have graduated, as will three other members of the first-string squad, including Marvin Spahr and Elwood Shaffer, Robert Dice, although only a junior now, will not be eligible another year because of the eight-semester rule, it is said.

The only regulars back will be Freddie Dalton and Howard Thompson, along with Jimmie Ralls and David Short, veteran substitutes. They total only four, as we figure it, and as almost everybody knows, it takes five players to round out the average basketball quintet.

As a result new material next season will be scanned closely in search of more talent.

The freshman crop of candidates next season will include Dawson Latimer, forward, Batson, center, and "Whitney" Glenn, guard who were valued members of Patterson's strong junior team during the past season.

Latimer in particular looks like a real comer. An accurate shot, he already handles himself like a veteran and has shown himself to be a cool customer under fire. Batson is also a fine shot, plays a heady floor game and should develop rapidly, while Glenn, if he does not make the grade in basketball, a sport at which he excelled in junior high.

An automobile racing plant which, when completed, will be the largest east of Indianapolis, is to be built in the southern part of Jefferson County. It is disclosed.

Within two weeks construction work on the project will be started, 100 acres of Ohio River bottom land, situated north of Warrenton, having been leased for the plant. Plans also call for erection of a huge grandstand flanking the Ohio River highway between Warrenton and Rush Run.

White practice has been under way only a few days Coach Lane expressed a confidence he would have a representative aggregation to take the diamond against the Yellow Springs outfit.

The Wilberforce schedule includes the following home games: April 6, Ohio Northern; April 16, Homestead Grays, Pittsburgh end; in the Negro American League; May 1, Cedarville College and May 18, Defiance College. Games with other Ohio and West Virginia institutions are being arranged, according to Dr. J. Aubrey Lane, chairman of the athletic council.

HILLSBORO DOCTOR COMMITTS SUICIDE

Dr. Herman O. Hodson, 38, Leesburg, O., health commissioner of Highland County, committed suicide by shooting himself at his home Wednesday noon. He was well known in this city as Mrs. Hodson is a cousin of Mrs. G. W. Kuhn, N. King St.

Dr. Hodson was a World War veteran and had been health commissioner for three years. He is survived by his widow, who was formerly Miss Virginia Syferd, and a son, Robert, student at Ohio State University, Columbus.

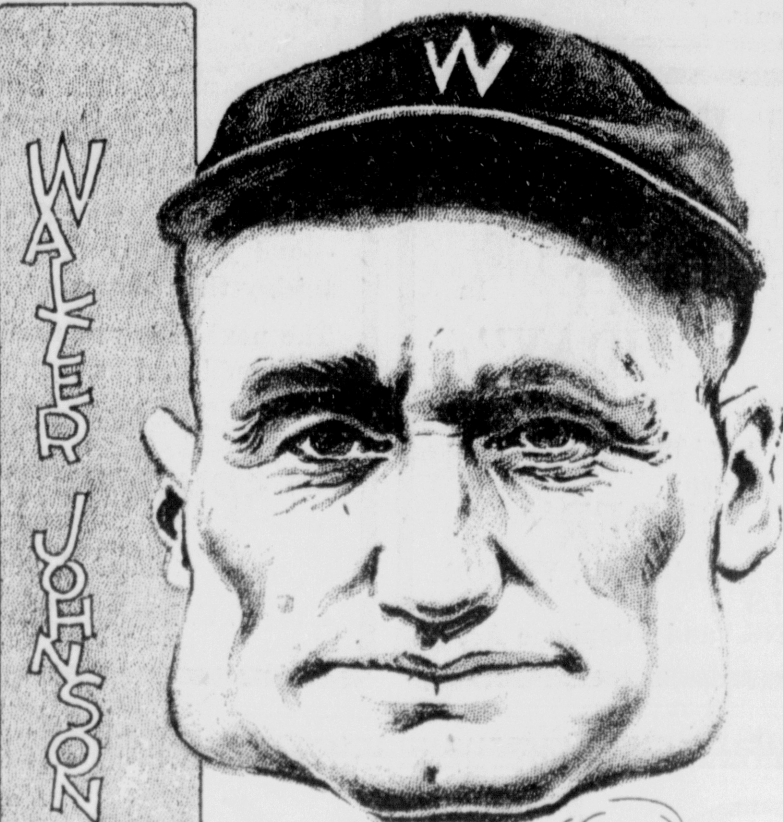

Funeral arrangements were not received by relatives here.

MEET THE MANAGER

BY JACK SORDS

MANAGER OF THE WASHINGTON SENATORS

AWARDED MOST VALUABLE PLAYER PRIZE IN 1924

Walter Johnson, the old Fire Ball King, having hurled Washington to two American League pennants hopes this year to reach even greater heights of fame by piloting the Senators to their third flag.

This is Johnson's third season at the helm of his old club. During the campaign of 1929 Johnson was hampered by illness and his club finished the season in fifth place. Last year he surprised the baseball public by driving the Senators past the Indians and Yankees to finish second. This season he wants a pennant.

Johnson was born in the little town of Humboldt, Kas., Nov. 6, 1887. He was just a kid in his middle teens when his pitching attracted attention and he was induced to join the Tacoma, Wash., Northwestern League team in 1906. However, he never played for this club. The same season, he twirled for a Weiser, Id., semi-pro outfit.

A Washington scout saw him and signed the 20-year-old lad, who joined the Senators in the closing days of the 1907 race. The next two seasons Johnson enjoyed but mediocre success. However, in

BASEBALL PRACTICE LAUNCHED BY ANTIOCH COLLEGE RECRUITS

Baseball practice is now in full swing at Antioch College, having been begun nearly two weeks ago, but the flake weather has prevented diamond candidates from indulging in outdoor workouts. With the exception of last Monday afternoon, the practice sessions have been confined indoors.

Twenty candidates turned out for the Division "B" team, which will play only two games, however, both away from Yellow Springs. The opening is with Wilberforce University April 4 and the University of Dayton will be met April 11.

The schedule for Division "A" is still incomplete, according to Coach Merrill Dawson, who announces that about five games may be arranged. A return game with the Dayton Flyers will be staged on the Antioch diamond May 13 and a game with Cedarville College is tentatively booked for May 16, to be played either on the Antioch or Cedarville diamond.

The list of available candidates for the Division "B" nine includes only six letter men from last year. The veterans are: Meyer, captain and outfielder; Pavey, pitcher; Stanwood, an outfielder who may be used in the infield or behind the plate; Idle, an outfielder, and Edmonds and Brown, both first basemen.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years, and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, just a healing, soothing vegetable laxative safe and pleasant.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They help cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you should find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets.

Thousands take them every night to keep right. Try them. 15c, 30c, 60c.

CROSSING CRASH IN YELLOW SPRINGS IS DAMAGE SUIT BASIS

A crossing accident in Yellow Springs, March 23, 1930 in which three young women, employed as music teachers in Wilmington and Clinton County schools, were injured, when their coupe was wrecked by a Pennsylvania passenger train, is the basis of a personal injury suit demanding $6,891 damages, filed in Clark County common pleas court against the railroad by Mrs. Margaret R. Gaylord, 26, Tiffin, O.

The plaintiff, at the time of the accident, was employed as music supervisor of the Clinton County schools and was owner and driver of the car in which two other teachers were riding. She sustained a fractured right kneecap and serious cuts on the fingers of the right hand.

The crossing where the accident occurred was said to have been unprotected by either a watchman or flasher signals and a line of box cars was reported to have obscured the driver's vision.

DROUGHT FUND NOW PAST TEN MILLION

Contributions totalling $10,111,590 have been received by the American Red Cross in its drought relief campaign, according to a bulletin received this week by Miss Emma F. Lyon, executive secretary of the local chapter. The goal set was $10,000,000 and in addition to the amount oversubscribed 600 carloads of foodstuffs were sent to the drought-stricken areas.

The local chapter did not canvass for subscriptions for the fund but voluntary donations sent in by the Greene County chapter totalled $95.

DENVER, Mar. 26.—Some "light fingered" sneak thief recently stole a man-hole cover from a Denver street. Police notified the city highway department, "Why would anybody swipe a man-hole cover?" "Dunno," sighed Police Sergeant James Childers, "Maybe they need it to play tiddle-de-winks."

DIPLOMATS LUNCH

ROME, Mar. 26.—A novel institution in the diplomatic world are the weekly luncheons for men at the American Embassy. Every Thursday Mr. Garrett invites from twenty to twenty-four distinguished peoples in various walks of life. Five tables are laid in the dining room at the Rospigliosi Palace and the guests sit informally at whatever table they like best, next to the personalities they wish to talk to. The only lady partaking of these luncheons is the wife of the Ambassador, Mrs. Garrett.

URGE APPROVAL FOR TWO-YEAR BUDGET BEFORE COMMITTEE

and Col. W. T. Amos, Sidney, president of the trustee board, were also among the speakers. The visiting delegation was headed by Col. D. H. Pond, Cleveland, a member of the board of trustees.

Members of the delegation pointed out to the finance committee that the state institution is filled to capacity and that the trustees have been forced to refuse admission to sons and daughters of ex-serve men at the average rate of one each day for the last few months.

It was explained that the personal service item, for which an appropriation of $407,700 is sought, is to take care of the present personnel increases in salary for matrons, teachers and specially qualified employees and for additional personnel needed for the anticipated increases in the home enrollment.

The appropriation of $738,729.25 for maintenance is to finance purchase of food, clothing, educational and recreational supplies and equipment, agricultural supplies and costs, and maintenance.

Under the heading of additions and betterments, for which $833,000 is requested of the state, are listed these proposed improvements: $100,000 for a nursery building; $10,000 for equipment for this building; $200,000 for kitchen, dining room, storeroom building and remodeling present building; $200,000 for grade school building and equipment; $15,000 for remodeling two cottages; $63,000 for a new hot water system; $20,000 for an educational, agricultural and horticultural greenhouse; $10,000 for garage and implement house; $15,000 for a private residence for the superintendent; $80,000 for two new cottages; $2,500 for a brood sow house; $25,000 for a physical educational and recreational building; $10,000 for developing a physical educational and recreational program; $15,000 for rebuilding roads; $1,500 for remodeling first floor barn; $6,000 for remodeling and refurbishing second floor of administration building; $60,000 for remodeling generating and distributing system.

Various patriotic organizations which have endorsed the Home budget for the next two years declare that it must be remembered no improvements had been made at the institution for about twenty-five years until 1925 when the American Legion, with the support of its posts, obtained an appropriation from the legislature for new buildings and improvements, but that a crisis has arisen in affairs of the institution and improvements must be continued until facilities are adequate to accommodate at least 1,200 to 1,500 children. At present the Home has reached its capacity of 714 children.

THREE NOTABLES TO SPEAK BEFORE FISH AND GAME MEMBERS

as a linguist have made him valuable to the federal government. It is he who translates articles from various foreign publications for the U. S. Air Corps. Count Lochwitzky spoke a couple of weeks ago before 1,000 Springfield Masons. Several Xenians present found the Count a brilliant after dinner talker. He takes the place on the program of Chas. F. Kettering, vice president of General Motors who is the fish and game association that he would be unable to attend the banquet on the date fixed.

The dinner is to be started promptly at 6 o'clock. Music will be furnished by the O. S. and S. O. Home Band and Octette under direction of Harold Seall. In addition Mrs. Richard McClelland will sing a solo.

The climax to the program will come with the showing of three motion pictures furnished by the National Cash Register Co., Dayton. They are: "Ride 'em Cow Boys," "With Rod and Gun" and "With Rod and Fly." The showing of each reel will take fifteen minutes and Count Lochwitzky twenty minutes. The latter will narrate hunting experiences in China and Siberia. It was forty-two years ago that the Count established a 3,000 acre bird and animal preserve on his estate near the then Russian capital. The governor, Count von Toll, named two game wards for the place.

George Little, of Xenia, will occupy a place at the speakers' table with Governor White. They served together in the Ohio legislature and are friends of long standing.

On the recommendation of Wm. A. Chryst, of the Delco Co., the fish and game pictures named were substituted for the Galapagos Island pictures, taken a few months ago by the Kettering yachting party.

Mr. Chryst, who leaves about June 1 with Charles Kelo, Dayton, former Xenian, for a hunting trip in equatorial Africa, explained that the Galapagos Island pictures were fitted only for parlor showing.

The dinner will be served by Jacob Kany and aides. Covers will be laid for 450 but in the event the demand for tickets warrants it this number can be increased.

SENATE COMMITTEE WILL LET ASSEMBLY DECIDE DISTRICTS

placed with Columbiana, Harrison, Jefferson and Belmont as a possible solution to the problem of redistricting the eastern part of the state.

"Everybody would object," Representative J. Freer Bittenger (D) of Ashland, party floor leader, said, to the proposed new seventh district joining Lorain, Medina, Ashland, Wayne and Richland.

Senator Charles J. Anderson (R) of Shelby, chairman of the subcommittee, however, indicated satisfaction with the plan.

Criticizing a "breakdown of community of interest," Senator John A. Lloyd (R) of Portsmouth threatened "bitter controversy" over a plan to separate Scioto County from western counties and join it to Lawrence, Gallia, Meigs, Athens, Vinton and Jackson on the east.

Admitting that the district to which Scioto was joined in the tentative arrangement, including Adams, Highland, Brown, Clinton, Clermont, Warren and Butler, would be Democratic, Senator Norton declared there seemed to be no other way to combine Preble and Montgomery in one district.

The proposed removal of Seneca County from the thirteenth district brought an objection from Senator William H. Herrier (D) of Monroeville.

For tentative purposes, the new, big eleventh district of Coshocton, Holmes, Knox, Licking, Delaware, Fairfield, Perry and Hocking Counties was accepted by the committee. No one appeared to complain about that part of the Norton plan.

Except to say that the proposed seventh of Greene, Pickaway, Ross, Pike, Fayette, Madison and Franklin (except Columbus) is too large in area, persons from that section of the state had no complaint about the change their district would undergo.

Members of the house redistricting committee said they probably will work their own gerrymander bill, embodying several sections of the Norton suggestion.

POLITICAL FUSION SEEMS INEVITABLE SPOKESMAN ADMITS

was that Austrian railroads will introduce the German signal system on all Austrian rail lines this year. Local political circles pointed to the latter decision as the most far-reaching one as yet made in connection with the current controversy over negotiations for the customs agreement. The new developments will probably do much to enhance the fear that the projected customs union will serve merely as the jumping-off place to an eventual "Anschluss," or a political fusion of Germany and Austria.

PRAGUE, CZECHO-SLOVAKIA, March 26.—Official reaction to the Austro-German customs pact took a more belligerent turn today with a bristling speech by Foreign Minister Edouard Benes to the foreign relations committee of the Czechoslovakian parliament.

"The Austro-German customs union may hit us and other states, thus endangering peace," M. Benes declared. "We are prepared for all eventualities."

LONDON, March 26.—Official circles of Great Britain were convinced today that the projected Austro-German customs union is merely a "cover" for a subsequent political agreement between the two nations, and therefore objectionable to the empire from all standpoints.

Information from Vienna that Austria intended to adapt its penal, civil, educational and railroad systems to German methods caused no surprise here, confirming suspicions about an undercurrent "Anschluss."

From Britain's standpoint, however, the economic combine represented by the projected customs union is a real bugaboo. It vitally affects the empire's foreign trade, its life blood, already sadly anaemic.

PARIS, March 26.—The Austro-German trade pact may change the entire future of Europe and Austria, at least, is "bound to regret" her participation in such an agreement, an official spokesman for the French foreign office told International News Service today. The statement was prompted by news that Dr. Hans Schurr, Austrian minister of justice, was planning a visit to Berlin to extend the scope of the agreement to include adaptation of German civil, penal, educational and railway methods to Austrian systems.

"The consequences of Berlin's startling initiative and disregard of treaties and conventions may change the future of all Europe," the spokesman said.

WOMAN ALWAYS COQUETTISH DESPITE FASHIONS

From the time Eve flirted with the monkeys in the Garden of Eden with flowers entwined in her hair, through periods of wild and weird headgear, to the present hat fashions, woman always has managed to look coquettish and attractive. Left, above, Anita Page does her bit for feminine pulchritude in a cute little hat of panama; center, Leila Hyams is "trick" without a vestige of hair showing, in a black and white cap; right, Dorothy Jordan makes hearts flutter in a wide brimmed lacy straw. Coy glances were just as effective, however, when projected from beneath a huge poke bonnet as shown below at left, or from the shade of the redoubtable sailor, next; the top heavy "lid" with feathers, third, was "the nuts" when it came to framing an attractive face; powdered curls were, of course, irresistible. Even the girl with a face that "only a mother could love," could pass for attractive with her map surrounded with soft white curls. The wee bonnet, fifth, made many a masculine heart go thump; where it perched atop milady's curls, while the Quakeress headgear, right, was a deadly weapon, as it made bright eyes brighter when seen beneath its shade.

THE PROCESSION THAT NEVER MOVES

Odd Memorial Stands Silently In Cemetery Except On Nights When Ghostly Figures Talk

By Central Press
MAYFIELD, Ky., March 26.—A procession that never moves, one of the strangest in the world, appears more ghostly than ever as the icy winds of winter whistle through the confines of Maplewood Cemetery here. The extraordinary whim of an eccentric millionaire, H. G. Woolridge, has given Kentucky its spectacular graveyard, the goal of motoring tourists.

Upon one large plot, nearly an acre in extent, has been assembled life-sized statues of Woolridge, members of his family, many relatives, and even his favorite horse and dogs. A deer stands at the head of this strange group, which appears to be ready to march when the horn of Gabriel is blown on the resurrection morn.

The Woolridge family had long ranked with the leading blue bloods of the state. Woolridge was proud of his lineage and believed that an enduring memorial should be installed that would be different from that of the prosaic type appearing in most cemeteries. He conceived the idea of an open air hall of fame, where, for all time, the appearance of himself and his family and his contemporary kin, as well as the animals that he loved, would be preserved in enduring marble.

A lover of horses, and a sportsman who was fond of riding with the hounds in the quest of game, he did not overlook animals in carrying out his plan, and many replicas of these also appear.

Stone Convenient
This city is the center of a quarry district and there was to be found an abundance of stone from which sculptors could fashion the figures desired by their patron.

His parents and brothers and sisters, as well as uncles and aunts who had preceded him across the river of death, all are included in the strange group. Photographs from dust covered albums, were utilized to guide the chisels as they clipped away the bits of stone to reveal the hidden figure to be memorialized. Written descriptions from children and others who knew those who had passed on were also secured and, while some of these might not have been wholly accurate, the job satisfied Woolridge and no complaints were heard from others who might have been interested.

One by one the memorials were hoisted into position, all facing in the same direction. That in some instances the bodies of these relatives were buried elsewhere did not give Woolridge any concern.

Two Statues of Himself
Woolridge decided upon two statues of himself, one standing with hand extended as if pointing with pride to his ancestry. The other depicts him mounted upon his favorite charger upon which he had often followed the hounds in the quest for game. In the carving of these two, Woolridge nettled the sculptor by his insistence upon exactitude. He personally supervised the chiseling.

The horse, which was reproduced with the figure of the owner in the saddle, bore the odd name of "Pop". The animal died a number of years prior to the decision to create this group of family sculpture, but Woolridge carried in his mind the exact appearance of the horse when alive. The size, length of mane and tail, the type of bridle and saddle, and other details, were faithfully reproduced as Woolridge furnished the description and the result gave complete satisfaction to the old gentleman.

Ghost Stories
Residents of Mayfield inclined to superstition, tell stories of ghostly conversation among the various immobile figures, especially on stormy nights. There are reports that the figures glide about in the enclosure, and weird lights shine through the mist.

Woolridge provided in his will for annual care of this strangest graveyard memorial.

MAD LAUGHTER

A THRILLING MYSTERY STORY • by MILES BURTON

CHAPTER 51

It was three minutes past four as the Scotland Yard men and Dick reached the center of the town, where a sergeant informed them that car number FZ 2004 had kept straight on towards Colchester.

"That's another twenty-one miles," said Pollard, as they flew out of the town. "Damn him! If he drives that Vauxhall all out he'll leave us behind yet. We've got to catch sight of him before he gets to Colchester, or we'll waste a lot of time finding out which way he's gone. The road forks there right to Harwich, left to Lowestoft and Yarmouth. I'm assuming that he's making for the coast, Mr. Penhampson. It's the most likely thing for him to do. Shake every ounce out of her, driver."

"I suppose he is, though he hasn't got that barge handy now," replied Dick. "He's hardly likely to be going all this way round to Lincolnshire."

Conversation became impossible. The car swayed and jolted as the driver swung in and out of the stream of traffic. He cut in remorselessly, taking risks that made Dick's heart leap into his mouth, and evoking volleys of abuse from the scandalized users of the road. They could have been Witham in eleven minutes, and there pulled up, as a frantically waving constable dashed up to them.

"Passed through here three minutes ago, sir," he panted breathlessly. "Straight on, towards Colchester."

"Got him now, I think," remarked Pollard complacently. "Ease her down to about forty, driver. We don't want to come on him too suddenly. We mustn't let him know we're after him. He would lead us away from the rendezvous if we did."

They sighted him first on a straight stretch of road beyond Marks Tey, Curtis was the first to distinguish a car, travelling slightly slower than they were. "That's him, sir," he called out. "I can't read the number, but it's a grey Vauxhall, all right."

"Don't get any closer then, till we make sure," replied Pollard. "He's about half a mile ahead now. Keep that distance from him till he gets into the outskirts of Colchester. Then close up to about three or four hundred yards."

The driver obeyed, and they were a short distance behind as they entered the town. Here they lost sight of him round the corners, but a constable put them on the right track. "That's the car, sure enough, sir," he reported, in answer to Pollard's question. "FZ 2004. He's just gone by. Took the main Ipswich road."

"That looks as if he's making for Lowestoft or Yarmouth, unless he means to turn off at Stratford St. Mary for Marwich, which isn't likely," said Pollard. "Confound it, it's getting devilish dark. You'll have to close up a bit, driver, as soon as you sight him again. Run up to him, and then drop behind again, or he'll guess he's being followed."

They caught up with him just outside of Colchester, and kept in touch with him along the seventeen miles to Ipswich. Fortunately there was plenty of traffic on the road, and consequently their quarry's suspicions were not aroused. Having reached Ipswich, they crept close enough up in the rear of the car, then slipped back again for fear that he should recognize them in his driving mirror. A little farther on, to their astonishment, he turned to the right along the Felixstowe road.

"Where the dickens is he going to now?" exclaimed Pollard. "There's a river on either side of him, with no bridges over them, if he keeps on. It's a regular cul-de-sac." Don't lose sight of him, driver.

But before the car reached Derby Road Station, it turned sharply to the left once more, and proceeded down a road which rapidly degenerated into a country lane. And as it did so, the man in it switched on his headlights.

"Now I'm lost!" exclaimed Pollard. "There's nothing down here but a village or two, and then the River Deben, which is about a mile wide. Unless he swims it he's cornered. You'll have to do the best you can without lights, driver. If you switch them on, he'll know we are after him."

They followed the lane for mile after mile, guided mainly by the headlights of the car in front of them. It was a perilous journey, for by now it was almost completely dark, and only the skill and eyesight of the driver saved them, time after time, from plunging into the ditch at the side of the road. At last, after a particularly narrow escape, when they had only been saved from collision with a bank by a desperate wrench at the wheel, Pollard decided upon bolder tactics.

"It's no good," he said. "We'll have to chance it. We're not more than a mile or two from the river, and this lane runs straight down to it without turning. From what I can see of it on the map."

The driver obeyed him, and in an instant the back of the car in front was illuminated by the powerful glare. The driver must have realized that he was being pursued, for he immediately put on speed and began to draw away from them.

"Damn it, we've got to stop him now," yelled Pollard. "Pass him and then slow down. You know the trick!"

The driver put his foot on the accelerator, and the car bounded forward. At first the distance between the two cars remained the same, then it slowly decreased as the pursuers gained ground.

"We'll have to chance his shooting over his shoulder," remarked Pollard. "He's not likely to make very good practice at this speed, that's one comfort. Jove, we're gaining on him!"

They were—of that there could be no doubt. Inch by inch they crept up, until only a few yards separated the two cars. The lane was narrow, so narrow that it seemed impossible to pass. But the driver, calling to his aid the last ounce of power which he had hitherto reserved, crept up until he was almost touching the mudguards of the car in front. And then he swerved to pass.

Pollard yelled out something, probably a summons to surrender, but his voice was drowned in a rending crash as the two cars lurched into one another. Dick was hurled on to the floor as the off-side wheels slid into the ditch and then bumped out again. By the time that he had recovered himself, they were past and the other car was behind them.

"Narrow squeak, that!" exclaimed Pollard. "Stand by, all of you and jump out when we stop!"

The driver continued for a couple of hundred yards, then applied his brakes suddenly and swung the car across the lane. They all leapt out as he did so, and began to run back to the car behind, which had pulled up when its driver saw their maneuver.

Dr. Weatherleigh—for it was he, there was no doubt about it now, Dick had caught sight of his face the instant after they had flashed past him—saw them coming. He put down his accelerator and the big Vauxhall bounded forward towards them. His intention to run them down was obvious, and they scattered like frightened birds into the hedges on either side. Dr. Weatherleigh never paused. Faster and faster the Vauxhall hurtled on, towards the police car which stood athwart the road, barring its way.

Dick watched it, fascinated. He found himself shouting at the top of his voice, calling upon the madman to stop.

A wild peal of maniacal laughter replied to him, that awful laughter which he had heard twice in his life before. Then came the crash, the horrible rending of torn metal, and Dr. Weatherleigh flew, as if hurled from a catapult, out of the driving seat, over the wreck of the police car, and on to the ground beyond.

Then came silence, utter and profound.

PREFERS WALTZES

MEXICO CITY, March 26.—President Ortiz Rubio prefers waltzes to any other. The president with Mrs. Ariz Rubio and a small body guard appeared at one of the popular downtown restaurants for supper. When the orchestra requested the president to name his favorite selections, he asked for "Nelly" and "Ann Harding," the latter a waltz written and named for the movie star of the same name.

The Theater

We hope you girls are reading this column today, because we are going to take a chance and tell you about Mlle. Gabrielle Chanel, the Paris fashion designer, who is in Hollywood now to dress the United Artists stars "six months ahead of the styles."

Although a leading fashion authority, the little, dark-eyed, dark-haired Frenchwoman admits she herself "can't wear clothes," which is a parance with which you girls are more familiar than your correspondent, who might think up a rather fruity answer if this wasn't a family print.

Be that as it may, as we are given to say, Mlle. Chanel has handed blouse Hollywood several jolts, the first being when she appeared at a tea in her honor wearing an ordi-

Channel has ever designed directly for anyone except herself. She designs a dress, a gown or a suit and anyone who likes it buys it. Asked to estimate how much a well-dressed woman should spend yearly on her wardrobe, the designer pointed out that many considerations enter into such a question. In terms of averages, however, she thinks a woman with any considerable social pretension and elegance would have to spend not less than $5,000 a year on clothes, in America or France. Naturally, it could be many times that. In fact, Mlle. Chanel admits she once lined a jacket of a simple suit, made of inexpensive tweed homespun, with sable that cost possibly $20,000.

It would be interesting to know how Hollywood affects this artist, with her passion for simplicity. She is so completely out of tune with life in the film colony.

The Library Association hopes to be able soon to put on exhibition the Blanche Poland collection of 1,200 coins presented by Dr. Poland, of New York, in memory of his sister.

Miss Elsie Grottendick entertained a small party of friends at her home on E. Main St.

Dr. J. R. McCormick arrived home from a trip in Louisiana and Texas.

nary sport outfit and a pearl necklace. It seems that she wears what she thinks will suit her best. Pearls are a hobby with her and she loves "ropes and ropes" of them paid for, let us hope, by herself.

Her theory of jewelry is that it should look and be amusing, decorative, colorful, shiny, a kind of adornment to a woman's attire when she is not particularly "dressed" and formal. For evening, when the mood is severe, there should be little or no jewelry, at least only such as would enhance the austerity of her attire. Mlle. Chanel hates jewelry, which she says looks "dirty and expensive." She was a leader in popularizing shiny costume jewelry.

Asked to name the leading American fashion designers, she delivered her second shock by declaring she was not acquainted with the work of any of them. She doesn't know who is the best dressed woman in Europe. She makes it a rule never to meet any of her clients. She doesn't go to public places. Her home life is entirely in the country, away from fashion and fashionable dresses. When she is in Paris she works, eats and sleeps in a three-room apartment over her Rue Cambon establishment.

The experiment with United Artists will be the first time Mlle.

A wise hubby calls his wife "darling" seldom enough to make her believe it.
